

How to Use MS-Word Template for MIRU2026

Hanako GAZO^{1,a)} Taro NINSHIKI^{2,b)} Jiro Rikai^{2,c)}

Abstract

Write abstract.

1. Introduction

This is a sample for MIRU2026 papers. The paper is written using MS-WORD.

2. How to prepare extended abstract

2.1 Language

Either Japanese or English is acceptable.

2.2 Paper length

The maximum length of a paper is four pages (excluding references).

2.3 Authors' names and affiliations

Please list the full names, affiliations and email addresses of authors. (The review process of selecting oral papers is single-blind.)

References

- [1] W. Rice, A. C. Wine, and B. D. Grain, diffusion of impurities during epitaxy, Proc. IEEE, vol. 52, no. 3, pp. 284-290, March 1964.
- [2] H. Tong, Nonlinear Time Series: A Dynamical System Approach, J. B. Elsner, ed., Oxford University Press, Oxford, 1990.
- [3] H. K. Hartline, A. B. Smith, and F. Ratliff, Inhibitory interaction in the retina, in Handbook of Sensory Physiology, ed. M. G. F. Fuortes, pp. 381-390, Springer-Verlag, Berlin.
- [4] Y. Yamamoto, S. Machida, and K. Igeta, "Micro-cavity semiconductors with enhanced spontaneous emission," Proc. 16th European Conf. on Opt. Commun., no. MoF4.6, pp. 3-13, Amsterdam, The Netherlands, Sept.1990.

¹ First University

² Second University (Presently with Third Corporation)

^{a)} hanako@gazo.ac.jp

^{b)} taro@ninshiki.co.jp

^{c)} jiro@rikai.co.jp

